NextHome Element Realty Announces August News & “Giving Back” Initiative
Starting with Camp Helping Hands

Simi Valley, CA – August 30, 2017 - I first met Meredith and her family at Cheerforce in Simi Valley. Our daughters have all been involved in competitive cheer from a young age- and it was through this connection that I helped her sell her home in Thousand Oaks. Since then, in our many travels with cheer, she has introduced me to her passion- Camp Helping Hands.

Our families have known each other for years now- and this year, I decided to establish my own real estate brokerage; and I knew I wanted to make a difference. As a father and a family man, I have always felt that children hold the power to change the world. Camp Helping Hands provided me with the perfect opportunity to contribute to the community by enabling our youth to experience the rewarding work of volunteering.

Just doing community service is one thing- but what CHH does is so much more. Instead of just mindlessly completing tasks, these children have the opportunity to learn about the source of the world’s problems and develop problem solving skills that are paramount in today’s world and critical to our future. In a time when compassion is one of the most important traits our children can possess, CHH utilizes the themes of earth, people, and animals to foster universal kindness in every child who attends. It is truly a life-changing experience for these children and their families- and I can’t say enough how much I wholeheartedly support this cause.

Working alongside Meredith, NextHome Element Realty intends to donate a portion of every home sale from CHH clients back into the organization to help provide assistance to families who might not have been able to afford the camp otherwise. I am thrilled to have the opportunity to make such a positive difference in our community- and challenge other NextHome brokerages to do the same as Camp Helping Hands expands across the nation. I truly believe that in this era plagued by entitlement, Camp Helping Hands is just what the doctor ordered.
